PHILADELPHIA – (July 19, 2017) -- Erigere Rapidus Solutions Inc. (ERS), a national security consulting firm, has expanded its high-level safety and surveillance services to the legal cannabis industry.

ERS provides physical security teams, monitoring, and products to emerging and established dispensary and cultivation facilities. The firm conducts comprehensive risk analysis assessments and drafts cannabis-specific policies and procedures compliant with local rules and regulations.

The legal cannabis market was estimated at $7.2 billion in 2016, and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate of 17%, according to analytics company New Frontier Data.

Due to this exponential growth and state licensing regulations that require minimum security thresholds, there is a high demand for ERS services that specialize in compliant security operations and solutions.

Owned and operated by retired U.S. Army Colonel Teresa Gladney and her son Robert Cormier, a former member of the U.S. Border Patrol Tactical Team, the ERS staff offers more than 20 years of law enforcement and protection experience with the Federal Government. All ERS personnel are former law enforcement and military from special operations.

“Security and continuity of operations are important to any business, but are vital to cannabis. It was important for ERS to pivot our expertise to this emerging market where cash proceeds and sensitive products are targets,” stated Robert Cormier, Chief Operating Officer.

As an ancillary cannabis business, ERS offers clients a competitive edge in the licensing application process and post-license operational success. According to Marijuana Business Magazine, a cultivation operation should budget between $80,000-$100,000 for security and retailers approximately $30,000-$40,000.

“I started ERS to accomplish one goal: Make high level law enforcement expertise available to anyone tackling the tough security realities of today - that includes the legal cannabis economy,” stated Founder and Owner Teresa Gladney.

ERS operates on a national scale and will be one of the exhibiting companies at the World Medical Cannabis Conference & Expo®. The second annual event will take place April 12-14, 2018, at the David L. Lawrence Convention Center in Pittsburgh.
